

FIND YOUR VINTAGE SEWING MACHINE ONLINE

You are probably going to have the most success if you focus on vintage sewing machines is SINGER® since they are the most common. There are always plenty of these machines available on-line however not all on-line options are created equal.

Online Sales and Auctions

- Sites such as eBay or specialty stores are more expensive, especially when you factor in the cost of shipping.
- Competition against other people drives the price higher
- You have to take the seller on faith when they describe the condition of the machine.

Online Classified Ads

- Classified ad sites such as Craigslist or Kijiji are usually less expensive
- You can easily contact the owner if you need more information.
- You can look at the machine before I pay for it.
- May limit the location from which you can purchase the machine since most sites are local.

Online Estate Sales

- Estate sale companies will often send you emails with photographs if a machine is available in your area
- You can look at the machine before I pay for it.
- Estate sales can be extremely popular so you will have to arrive early and line-up to have any chance of getting the machine.
